THE SCIENCE OF STORYTELLING BY WILL STORR. ... The brain is a natural storyteller that turns the events of our lives into a dramatic three-act narrative of crisis, struggle, resolution and fills it full of allies and villains and drama and emotion. Writers exploit these neural functions often without knowing exactly how they're doing it or why.

Description : In troubled societies narratives about the past tend to be partial and explain a conflict from narrow perspectives that justify the national self and condemn, exclude and devalue the 'enemy' and their narrative. Through a detailed analysis, Teaching Contested Narratives reveals the works of identity, historical narratives and memory as these are enacted in classroom dialogues, canonical texts and school ceremonies.
